THE WEATHER.

Saturday fair and much colder.

Tom Melton, Tim Collins and John Roberts went to Oak Hill to take part in a bear hunt today.

Leon Vann took a party of auto racer drivers on a trip to Spruce Creek today.

C. C. Havens, of Trenton, N. J., is requested to call on the baggage master at the depot.

C. B. Judd left today to attend the A. A. banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on Jan. 16.

C. H. Curtis and family, of Bluffton, Fla., who have been on a visit to Mrs. M. J. King, Holly Hill, returned to their home today.

A horse belonging to Roy Miller, of Holly Hill, wandered into a bog near Mr. Yelvington's residence on the Ormond-Daytona road, yesterday. The animal was rescued by Chas. Parker, Frank Sparks and Mr. English, to whom Mr. Miller extends thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Graham, Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. J. H. Caswell, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Browning, Miss Eleanor Browning, M. A. Webster, wife and son, Narragansett Pier, R. I.; E. E. Twinford, Chicago at The Despland.

Ernest J. Mills has put in a 4 h. p. engine, with which to operate his ice cream plant. This new apparatus enables him to freeze 30 quarts of cream in about 20 minutes. The quality is all that can be desired.

Another Automobilist

Capt. A. E. Anderson, of Kingston, N. Y., who is a regular winter resident at New Smyrna, was in the city today looking for his automobile, which arrived on the noon freight, and left, accompanied by his chauffeur, for New Smyrna upon its arrival. The machine is a 20 h. p. Ford and came to Jacksonville by steamer.

Capt. Anderson came down via the A. C. L. train which was wrecked at Ashley Junction, but he and his family escaped uninjured.

The Captain is an old winter visitor, and stated to the DAILY NEWS reporter that he knew Daytona at the time Day settled here.

New Smyrna Party.

The Cherokee carried a party to New Smyrna today to visit the Spanish ruins and other points of interest there. This party, all guests of The Cedars, were: J. B. Beacher and wife, S. Seop and wife, G. W. Sebo and wife, Miss Mabel Sebo, Master D. Sebo, Edw. Anderson and wife, F. M. Shafer, Mr. and Mrs. Wooley, Miss Florence Maley, Mrs. W. Jackson and Graham Thompson.

New Smyrna Launch Party.

A jolly party of guests from The Cleveland made a trip to New Smyrna, yesterday, on the motor launch, Moya, Capt. Merrill. The day was all that could be desired for a trip to this old settlement.

On arrival there, a very appetizing lunch was partaken of, prepared by the genial hostess of the Cleveland, to whom the thanks of the company were voted by all who were fortunate enough to be present.

The time there was all too short to see the sights but an hour was well spent in looking at the ruins of the old fort, the Spanish walls and gypsy camp.

The party arrived into this city about five o'clock, having spent an hour at the Inlet gathering many beautiful shells.

How Some People Manage.

"I believe," said Mrs. Burroughs, "that if I can get the use of Mrs. Snowed's shell cups and saucers next Friday and Mrs. Hilby will loan me her spoons and Mrs. Housakeep will let me have some of her nice coloring mixture I believe I'll buy a pound of sugar and give a pink tea."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Artistic Difficulties.

"It is difficult for a beginner in the drama even to walk across the stage properly, isn't it?" asked the student. "Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes absently. "But it isn't as hard as learning to walk between stations."—Washington Star.

Of More Consequence.

Hanley—That man Wilkes is going everywhere telling lies about you. Mercer—I don't mind that, but if he begins to tell the truth I'll let him know it.—London Tit-Bits.

Napoleon and the Directory. "How did Napoleon get his assistants at the time of the consulate?" "Oh, I suppose he looked in the directory."—Yale Record.

The First Appearance Of the Brass Band

It was the first public appearance of the newly organized brass band in a small country town. The occasion was a political demonstration, and the brass band, at the head of the grand procession, was covering itself with glory. Suddenly the brass drum came to a dead stop and maintained a grim silence for some little distance. When the procession made a temporary halt the leader of the band sought out the man with the big drum and indignantly demanded why he had spoiled the effect of their performance in one of its most telling passages.

"Do yer see that 'ere house over there?" responded the man in a low, confidential tone, pointing to an old farmhouse a little way back. "Yes," growled the exasperated leader.

"Well, that 'ere is my house," said the drummer, "and I've got a hen a-settin' there, and I didn't want to break her up."—Lippincott's Magazine.

She and Love.

When Love first came to her she was twenty, pretty, vivacious and of many moods. She had a deep feeling for the rosy little boy, but after days of ponderings and many sleepless nights she sent him away.

"I know you will not blame me," she said to him. "I am young, and I will be happier to see more of life first. I am sorry, but of course you will come again."

Several years passed before Love came again. Lines were beginning to show around her eyes and in her brow. Love was the same rosy boy, but there had come a great change in her, and she addressed him as Opportunity.

"I can love this man quite as much as I did the first," she mused, meaning her lover of twenty. "When he asks me I will say yes."

But it happened that he never asked her.

When Love came again she was indeed an old maid. A faint flush crept into the fixed dulness of her cheek, and her voice trembled when she spoke.

That time the name she gave the bright little fellow was Last Chance.—Brooklyn Life.
